

Preparation Instructions: Interior German Roach Treatment

- Utilizing standard housekeeping procedures, please clean all food debris and trash from the infested areas, and ensure all food is put away in sealed storage bags or containers. These steps will help remove attractant food sources for the roaches and ensure they will come to the bait we place.

Modern treatment protocols for residential roach control utilize highly targeted consumable baits that the technician places in strategic locations around the infested areas. The bait is a semi-solid gel or paste depending on the brand and active ingredients. The bait remains in place and is not located where it would come into contact with food or dishes. The bait is consumed by the adult roaches and also taken back to their hidden nesting areas and shared with juvenile roaches, eliminating the entire colony over the course of the 2-3 treatment protocol.

Using baits vs. broad liquid spray treatment eliminates the need for customers to remove all their food and dishes, then wash down all cabinets and counter tops then replace all the removed items, as was the case in the past.
